What is the current vital educational activity of the Tile Heritage Foundation?

Tile Heritage Archives, Collections, Finding Aid development

Since the inception of the Foundation in 1987, ingathering tile related documents, images and tile-related information for scholarly and public dissemination has been the goal. In addition, Tile Heritage strives to protect its archives for posterity as cultural treasures. A strategic plan is in place for the continued development of a finding aid and database index of the Tile Heritage Foundation Archival Research and Resource Library and Collections.

Due to the continuing requests for information as an educational tool, THF has been engaged in significantly improving the accessibility of its library, archives and collections. Over the past fifteen years findable databases have been built for the archives, the digital image collection, the tile collection as well as the catalog and the periodical collections, which consists of over 40,000 documents, 44,000+ digital images and more than 4,000 American ceramic tiles dating back to the late 19th century, all donated.

To date approx. 470 historic & 780 contemporary tile company files have been categorically and chronologically archived into a Finding Aid database. Other areas of the Foundation's assets include files for significant tile installations in cities, states and foreign countries; there are files as well for architectural terra cotta companies, historians & important individuals. In addition, the archives contain the Foundation's 35 years of organizational records and databased records of over 1000 historic and contemporary catalogs and periodical publications related to ceramic tile.

The archival data continues to be organized and cataloged currently (2022). The Foundation will continue to develop, post, and finally publish an online finding-aid index of published and unpublished records as well as other resources including samplings from the tile collections, tile image databases as well as links to existing THF published indices.

Preservation recommendations

Over the past 35 years the Tile Heritage Foundation has been asked to write letters of support for the protection and preservation of tiles in situ on the exterior and interior of historic buildings, assisting in their preservation, thus receiving listed building or National Trust status.

. . . go to next page

In addition, practically on a daily basis the Foundation is asked to identify tile installations in homes and other locations as well as asked to provide advice on cleaning and preserving tiles.

THF Doty Grants given for Primary Research in the field of ceramic surfaces.

The Doty Research Grant was established in 1992 to stimulate research in the field of ceramic tile history and conservation. Grants range from $500 to $5000 for any qualified individual who wishes to engage in primary research or in a preservation endeavor for the enhancement and protection of ceramic surfaces in the United States. Thus far more than $35,000 has been granted to thirteen recipients, scholars and writers. Grants ranged from $1500 to $5000. These grants are funded entirely by donations from individuals and businesses, members of the Tile Heritage community who specifically contribute funds for this purpose in addition to their annual membership dues. Grant guidelines/applications are available at the Tile Heritage website.
