

The Spanish Pottery

Circa 1927-1931

Notes

<sup>1</sup> Lawrence Clark Powell, California Classics (Los Angeles, CA: The Ward Ritchie Press, 1971), p.21

Alexander D. Bevil, "The History of California China Products Company of National City, California, 1911-1917", The Journal of San Diego History, vol. 45 no. 4 (Fall 1999).

<sup>1</sup> Bruce Kamerling, San Diego and the American Art Pottery Movement (San Diego, CA: San Diego Historical Society, 1987), unpaginated brochure.

<sup>1</sup> "New Members Received from October 15 to November 15, 1923", Bulletin of the American Ceramic Society, vol. 2, 1923. Thank you to Joe Taylor at the Tile Heritage Foundation for this reference. Walter's South Pasadena address was 1314 Bank Street and his Glendale address was 1246 S. Orange Street.

<sup>1</sup> Death Valley National Park Museum Collection, Scotty's Castle: MSS 15, box 3, folder 3, book 9.

<sup>1</sup> The author first visited the site in 1999 and photographed the building.

<sup>1</sup> Death Valley National Park Museum Collection, Scotty's Castle: MSS 12, box 6, folder 3: invoice

and letter from The Spanish Pottery dated October 22, 1930.

<sup>1</sup> The author is not aware if this particular order was installed, however tiles matching this description can be observed today behind the stove in the kitchen of Scotty's Castle.

<sup>1</sup> Now 68 years old, De Steiguer was earlier a literary confidant of Walter Nordhoff, who like de Steiguer became a published author late in life. See "The Journey of the Flame" in Powell for a detailed discussion of the surrounding controversy.

<sup>1</sup> Powell P.22.